SECTIONAL ARKANSAS.

It is now and has ever been the case that Arkansas opinion is divided by sections. It has always been the rule that in the section of the state bordering along the Mississippi, St. Francis, or along the eastern section of other rivers of the state, the vote is always what is called liberal and progressive on all issues.

It has also been the rule that in the western part of the state, or what is termed the "hill country" the vote may almost universally be predicted to be "agin" most of the things that are proposed.

Eastern Arkansas voted in support of the constitution because that section wanted the advantage of the features which mean public improvement. The people of that part of the state are wealthy as a rule, and they want large sums of public money for public improvements.

An unusual report comes from Benton county. That county voted heavily on the constitution, and the vote was 546 for and 1501 against the constitution—a difference of almost enough in itself to have changed the result of the 2,000 majority by which the proposal lost. Benton county adjoins Washington county, and is in the immediate vicinity of Fayetteville, in Washington county, and in the constitution Fayetteville as a seat of learning for the state, was made permanent. Washington county appreciated that great benefit to that north-west section of the state, and voted heartily in support of the constitution perhaps because of the section pertaining to Fayetteville, but the adjoining county voted stoutly against the whole.

This is not in criticism of the vote of Benton county, but it is a warning to the fact that Arkansas as a whole should be constrained to co-operate. The state is not sectional, and if the imaginary divisional line between the bottom section and the hill section were obliterated, and these sections could unite in a spirit of co-operation, the state as a whole would make better progress.

GET YOUR SOLDIER OUT.

If you happen to have an employee in the service of the government, and he has a place open and waiting for him, it will facilitate his name being reached in the list of discharged men if you will call on your local draft board and get a formal card, and fill it out, and have it sent in through the adjutant general's office.

The government wants the men who have places open to be the first discharged. This is because business for new men will have to receive a little "after the war" stimulation, and in turning free the men whose services are awaited at home, the government is following out an idea that is practical.

The farmers of the county should work on this idea. They should not merely remain at home and wonder when the needed boy will be released, but they should go to the local draft board and sign up a card setting forth that the services of the boy is needed at home, and he will be back that much sooner.

Every farmer in the county ought to take notice of this, and act on the suggestion. There is neglected work on the farms, and the time of preparing the ground will soon be here. The sooner these boys are back at their work the better off will be the county as a whole. Let's all work together for the return immediately of the men who have places to fill at home, and thus help ourselves and help solve the problem of the release of the millions of soldiers.

We can boast of the highway accomplishments of the county in 1918 and know full well that 1919 will bring a bigger record.

DREADED FOR NIGHT TO COME

Texas Lady in Pretty Bad Fix, Heard of Cardui, Tried It, And Now Says It Saved Her Life.

Chilton, Texas.—Mrs. Mary Reese, of this place, states: "Sometime ago I was quite sick and suffered a great deal. I had been suffering quite awhile. At times I had such severe pains in my back, across my hips and in my sides,—I was in a pretty bad fix. I was so restless I dreaded for night to come.

Having heard of Cardui, I thought I'd try it. . . . I commenced to get better with my first bottle. I took six bottles of Cardui, and will tell any woman what this Cardui Home Treatment can and will do if taken according to directions. We not only feel cured but . . . most likely saved my life. I am able to do my work with ease and know Cardui did it."

Cardui has been found to relieve many womanly pains and ailments, and thousands of women have written to tell of the benefit it has been to them, in cases of female troubles and weakness.

Cardui is prepared from mild, medicinal ingredients, which act as a tonic and help build up health and strength in a natural manner.

Try Cardui. At druggists.—Adv.

Tribute of Eminent Chemist on G. S.

Consulting Chemist's
CertificateW. H. MORSE, M. D.
Consulting ChemistNovember Twentieth
1918.

To Whom It May Concern:

This is to certify that I have had the opportunity of examining the preparation "G. S." purchased in the open market in Atlanta, Ga., and of exhibiting the same in medical practice.

I find it to be a meritorious remedy, carefully compounded, and of high therapeutic value in the treatment of derangements of the functions of the kidneys, liver and spleen which derangements are indicated by rheumatic, rheumatoid and gouty disorder.

The exact cause of rheumatism is unknown, but it is generally supposed to be due to an excess of uric acid in the blood. That excess occurs when the functions of the kidneys, liver and spleen are deranged.

Therefore, as "G. S." restores those functions, and thus frees the blood of uric acid and all else that is contaminating, it stands to reason that it is remedial of rheumatism, gout, lithaemia, uricacidemia, and auto-infection from all suboxidation products of the uric acid type.

Respectfully and heartily submitted,

W. H. MORSE.

Letter from Dr. Morse, Consulting Chemist, of Conn.

W. H. MORSE, M. D.
449 Zion Street
Hartford, Conn.November Twentieth
1918Dr. Gross,
Little Rock, Ark.

Dear Sir:

I enclose a Consulting Chemist's Certificate on your "G. S." which came to my notice as the Great Stuff used by our boys at Camp Hancock.

That which they said, made me curious to know the Why and Wherefore of its chemical character and therapy. The Certificate states results.

I have said to the boys that at the Camp, or anywhere else, where the renal, hepatic and splenic functions become deranged, if "G. S." is used Hic Habitat Felicitas! may be written over the door.

I have not written the Certificate for fee; but I know you Southern gentlemen well enough to know that you will want to show your appreciation by some "turn of compliment," so you will find herewith also the card of a Mission of which I am Superintendent, which would appreciate any part of the Consulting Chemist's $25 fee as a donation.

Finally, I congratulate you on your preparation, and am sure that with it in the house one will not find any pleasure in having rheumatism, gout, or a bilious spell.

Heartily yours,

W. H. MORSE.

This Should Convince Any Reasonable Man

That G. S. is not merely a propriety medicine of merit, but that it is really a specific for all the ailments. Dr. Morse would not use the medicine at Camp Hancock and recommend its use to the soldiers of the country, if it were not so.

The "Great Stuff," as Dr. Morse puts it, is put up and sold in Little Rock by L. M. Gross, and may be had at most any first-class drug store in Arkansas or elsewhere. If you cannot buy it from your druggist send $1 for one bottle or $5 for six bottles; one bottle guaranteed to benefit any case of Pellagra, Rheumatism, Blood Liver or Kidney Trouble. If it does not benefit, your money will be refunded and no questions asked.
